NEW QUESTION: 3You have an on-premises network that includes a Microsoft SQL Server instance named SQL1.You create an Azure Logic App named App1.You need to ensure that App1 can query a database on SQL1.Which three actions should you perform in sequence? To answer, move the appropriate actions from the list of actions to the answer area and arrange them in the correct order.Answer: Explanation:Explanation:To access data sources on premises from your logic apps, you can create a data gateway resource in Azure so that your logic apps can use the on-premises connectors.Box 1: From an on-premises computer, install an on-premises data gateway.Before you can connect to on-premises data sources from Azure Logic Apps, download and install the on-premises data gateway on a local computer.Box 2: From the Azure portal, create an on-premises data gateway>Create Azure resource for gateway After you install the gateway on a local computer, you can then create an Azure resource for your gateway. This step also associates your gateway resource with your Azure subscription.* Sign in to the Azure portal. Make sure you use the same Azure work or school email address used to install the gateway.On the main Azure menu, select Create a resource > Integration > On-premises data gateway.* On the Create connection gateway page, provide this information for your gateway resource.* To add the gateway resource to your Azure dashboard, select Pin to dashboard. When you're done, choose Create.Box 3: From the Logic Apps Designer in the Azure portal, add a connector After you create your gateway resource and associate your Azure subscription with this resource, you can now create a connection between your logic app and your on-premises data source by using the gateway.* In the Azure portal, create or open your logic app in the Logic App Designer.* Add a connector that supports on-premises connections, for example, SQL Server.* Set up your connection.References:

NEW QUESTION: 4 Which of the following is a technique for gathering information about a remote network protected by a firewall?
A. War dialing
B. Warchalking
C. Firewalking
D. War driving
Answer: C
Explanation: Fire walking is a technique for gathering information about a remote network protected by a firewall. This technique can be used effectively to perform information gathering attacks. In this technique, an attacker sends a crafted packet with a TTL value that is set to expire one hop past the firewall. If the firewall allows this crafted packet through, it forwards the packet to the next hop. On the next hop, the packet expires and elicits an ICMP "TTL expired in transit" message to the attacker. If the firewall does not allow the traffic, there should be no response, or an ICMP "administratively prohibited" message should be returned to the attacker. A malicious attacker can use firewalking to determine the types of ports/protocols that can bypass the firewall. To use firewalking, the attacker needs the IP address of the last known gateway before the firewall and the IP address of a host located behind the firewall. The main drawback of this technique is that if an administrator blocks ICMP packets from leaving the network, it is ineffective. Answer option B is incorrect. Warchalking is the drawing of symbols in public places to advertise an open Wi-Fi wireless network. Having found a Wi-Fi node, the warchalker draws a special symbol on a nearby object, such as a wall, the pavement, or a lamp post. The name warchalking is derived from the cracker terms war dialing and war driving. Answer option C is incorrect. War driving, also called access point mapping, is the act of locating and possibly exploiting connections to wireless local area networks while driving around a city or elsewhere. To do war driving, one needs a vehicle, a computer (which can be a laptop), a wireless Ethernet card set to work in promiscuous mode, and some kind of an antenna which can be mounted on top of or positioned inside the car. Because a wireless LAN may have a range that extends beyond an office building, an outside user may be able to intrude into the network, obtain a free Internet connection, and possibly gain access to company records and other resources. Answer option D is incorrect. War dialing or wardialing is a technique of using a modem to automatically scan a list of telephone numbers, usually dialing every number in a local area code to search for computers, Bulletin board systems, and fax machines. Hackers use the resulting lists for various purposes, hobbyists for exploration, and crackers - hackers that specialize in computer security - for password guessing.
