* A large number of physical target devices are part of a single subnet.
* The target device machines are of the same specialized model and have been designed for use with Provisioning Services.
* A security mandate prohibits the use of TFTP.
Which Provisioning Services boot method is appropriate for the target devices?A. DHCP OptionsB. BDM ISOC. BIOS EmbeddedD. PXEE. BDM Disk PartitionAnswer: C*Explanation:

Explanation
<https://docs.citrix.com/en-us/provisioning/7-15/managing-target-device/bootstrap-bios-embedded.html> A security mandate prohibits the use of TFTP-That essentially narrows it down to BDM or BIOS embedded-A large number of physical target devices-that would likely eliminate BDM which you could do but likely won't because of the large number of machines you'd need to touch to do BDM vs. Bios Embedded-The target device machines are of the same specialized model and have been designed for use with Provisioning Services. -that's the KICKER and is obviously pointing you towards Bios Embedded as the correct option because the OEM has designed a specialized model for use with PVS-<https://docs.citrix.com/en-us/provisioning/7-15/managing-target-device/bootstrap-bios-embedded.htm>
