NEW QUESTION: 1A customer plans to migrate data from an HP EVA4400 to an HP 3PAR StoreServ 7000. The customer has VMware vSphere 5 that uses the HP EVA4400.How can the customer migrate the VMware storage without disruption?A. by verifying the EVA is running a supported firmwareB. by configuring multipathing between storage systemsC. by configuring load-balancing between storage systemsD. by upgrading the VMware vSphere versionAnswer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which description describes the low latency queuing algorithm?A. Packets are placed into a single queue and serviced in the order they were received.B. An administrator defines the traffic classes based on match criteria, including protocols, access control lists, and input interfaces.C. A flow-based algorithm that simultaneously schedules interactive traffic to the front of a queue to reduce response time and fairly shares the remaining bandwidth among high-bandwidth flows.D. Empty queue 1. If queue 1 is empty, empty queue 2, then empty queue 3, unless a packet for a higher queue arrives.E. This feature brings strict priority queuing to CBWFQ.Answer: EExplanation:The Low Latency Queueing feature brings strict priority queueing to Class-Based Weighted Fair Queueing (CBWFQ). Strict priority queueing allows delay-sensitive data such as voice to be dequeued and sent first (before packets in other queues are dequeued), giving delay-sensitive data preferential treatment over other traffic. Without Low Latency Queueing, CBWFQ provides weighted fair queueing based on defined classes with no strict priority queue available for real-time traffic. CBWFQ allows you to define traffic classes and then assign characteristics to that class. For example, you can designate the minimum bandwidth delivered to the class during congestion.For CBWFQ, the weight for a packet belonging to a specific class is derived from the bandwidth you assigned to the class when you configured it. Therefore, the bandwidth assigned to the packets of a class determines the order in which packets are sent. All packets are serviced fairly based on weight; no class of packets may be granted strict priority. This scheme poses problems for voice traffic that is largely intolerant of delay, especially variation in delay. For voice traffic, variations in delay introduce irregularities of transmission manifesting as jitter in the heard conversation.The Low Latency Queueing feature provides strict priority queueing for CBWFQ, reducing jitter in voice conversations. Configured by the priority command, Low Latency Queueing enables use of a single, strict priority queue within CBWFQ at the class level, allowing you to direct traffic belonging to a class to the CBWFQ strict priority queue. To enqueue class traffic to the strict priority queue, you configure the priority command for the class after you specify the named class within a policy map. (Classes to which the priority command is applied are considered priority classes.) Within a policy map, you can give one or more classes priority status. When multiple classes within a single policy map are configured as priority classes, all traffic from these classes is enqueued to the same, single, strict priority queue.One of the ways in which the strict priority queueing used within CBWFQ differs from its use outside CBWFQ is in the parameters it takes. Outside CBWFQ, by using the ip rtp priority command, you specify the range of UDP ports whose voice traffic flows are to be given priority service. Using the priority command, because you can configure the priority status for a class within CBWFQ, you are no longer limited to a UDP port number to stipulate priority flows. Instead, all of the valid match criteria used to specify traffic for a class now applies to priority traffic. These methods of specifying traffic for a class include matching on access lists, protocols, and input interfaces. Moreover, within an access list you can specify that traffic matches are allowed based on the IP Differentiated Services Code Point (DSCP) value that is set using the first six bits of the Type of Service (ToS) byte in the IP header.Although it is possible to enqueue various types of real-time traffic to the strict priority queue, we strongly recommend that you direct only voice traffic to it. This recommendation is made because voice traffic is well-behaved, whereas other types of real-time traffic are not. Moreover, voice traffic requires that delay be nonvariable in order to avoid jitter. Real-time traffic such as video could introduce variation in delay, thereby thwarting the steadiness of delay required for successful voice traffic transmission.

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following specifies the behaviors of the DRM implementation and any applications that are accessing the implementation?A. Access controlB. Compliance ruleC. OS fingerprintingD. OTA provisioningAnswer: BExplanation:The Compliance rule specifies the behaviors of the DRM implementation and any applications that are accessing the implementation. The compliance rule specifies the following elements: Definition of specific license rights Device requirements Revocation of license path or penalties when the implementation is not robust enough or noncompliant Answer B is incorrect. Over- the- air provisioning is a mechanism to deploy MIDlet suites over a network. It is a method of distributing MIDlet suites. MIDlet suite providers install their MIDlet suites on Web servers and provide a hypertext link for downloading. A user can use this link to download the MIDlet suite either through the Internet microbrowser or through WAP on his device. Answer C is incorrect. An access control is a system, which enables an authority to control access to areas and resources in a given physical facility, or computer-based information system. Access control system, within the field of physical security, is generally seen as the second layer in the security of a physical structure. It refers to all mechanisms that control visibility of screens, views, and data within Siebel Business Applications. Answer A is incorrect. OS fingerprinting is a process in which an external host sends special traffic on the external network interface of a computer to determine the computer's operating system. It is one of the primary steps taken by hackers in preparing an attack.
