NEW QUESTION: 3A security engineer is a new member to a configuration board at the request of management. The company has two new major IT projects starting this year and wants to plan security into the application deployment. The board is primarily concerned with the applications' compliance with federal assessment and authorization standards. The security engineer asks for a timeline to determine when a security assessment of both applications should occur and does not attend subsequent configuration board meetings. If the security engineer is only going to perform a security assessment, which of the following steps in system authorization has the security engineer omitted?A. Review the results of user acceptance testingB. Consult with the stakeholders to determine which standards can be omittedC. Establish the security control baselineD. Build the application according to software development security standardsAnswer: C
Explanation:A security baseline is the minimum level of security that a system, network, or device must adhere to. It is the initial point of reference for security and the document against which assessments would be done.Incorrect Answers:B: Building the application with secure coding is the programmers' duty.C: User acceptance testing is part of the development processD: Standards are not security concerns.References: Gregg, Michael, and Billy Haines, CASP CompTIA Advanced Security Practitioner Study Guide, John Wiley & Sons, Indianapolis, 2012, pp. 272-273
