NEW QUESTION: 1 Which two statements are true about the Default Currency setting on the Company Profile page?
A. It removes the ability of users to specify a different currency in their user profile.
B. It allows you to set the conversion rate for all monetary fields in the application.
C. It determines the currency for displaying forecast totals.
D. It sets the default currency for all reports and analyses.
E. It determines the currency for all data imported into CRM on Demand.
Answer: C, D
Explanation:
A: By default, the forecast will be displayed in your native currency (the default currency selected on your user profile or your company's default currency). The default currency is used as a default for your users. You can activate additional currencies so that users can change the setting for their own use (see Managing Currencies). However, the currency set here determines the default currency used for forecasts, which are company-wide.
D: To allow users to conduct and track business in any currency, you need to activate those currencies. Otherwise, the default currency set up for the company is the only option. If your employees record transactions in other currencies, you also need to set up exchange rates between those currencies and your company's default currency. The application uses the exchange rates when rolling up revenue for reports and forecasting.
