NEW QUESTION: 2 There are some correlations between relational data base terminologyand object-oriented database terminology. Which of the followingrelational model terms, respectively, correspond to the object modelterms of class, attribute and instance object?A. Relation, domain, and columnB. Relation, tuple, and columnC. Domain, relation, and columnD. Relation, column, and tupleAnswer: DExplanation:Table shows the correspondence between the two models.In comparing the two models, a class is similar to a relation; however, a relation does not have the inheritance property of a class. An attribute in the object model is similar to the column of a relational table. The column has limitations on the data types it can hold whilean attribute in the object model can use all data types that are supported by the Java and C++ languages. An instance object in the object model corresponds to a tuple in the relational model. Againimage011the data structures of the tuple are limited while those of the instance object can use data structures of Java and C++.
