NEW QUESTION: 1Which two prefixes are martian routes by default? (Choose two.)A. 192.0.0.0/16B. 192.0.0.0/24C. 127.0.0.0/16D. 127.0.0.0/8Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION: 2What is the nature of the information for the worksheet "Interface List" we use?There are 2 correct answers to this questionResponse:A. Name of the services we useB. The document requires for administrationC. The type of the interfaceD. The software component in the SuiteAnswer: C,D

NEW QUESTION: 3You have an application already deployed in a production environment that needs a modification to one of its tuning parameters. Currently, that tuning parameter has a default value since there was neither a deployment descriptor used nor a deployment plan included with the application deployment. You now attempt to use the Administration Console web application to make a dynamic modification to that parameter.Which statement is true? (Choose the best answer.)A. A new deployment plan will be generated and saved at the indicated location.B. A new skeleton plan.xml will be generated if a plan folder is detected with the deployed application.C. The modification attempt will fail because there is no existing deployment plan associated with the application.D. The modification attempt will fail because there is no deployment descriptor included within the application.Answer: B*Explanation: ExplanationDefining tuning parameters is not required in order to successfully deploy an application. If an application's deployment descriptors and deployment plan do not define tuning parameters, WebLogic Server uses default values. The Administration Console automatically uses a deployment plan named plan.xml in the plan subdirectory of an application root directory if one is available.
