NEW QUESTION: 1 Which two considerations about secure network monitoring are important? (Choose two.)
A. Use RADIUS for router commands authorization.
B. Do not use a loopback interface for device management access.
C. accurate time stamping
D. log tampering
E. off-site storage
F. encryption algorithm strength
Answer: C, D
Explanation: A coordinated clock is important primarily to provide chronological, sequential, and coordinated logs. If clock sources are hijacked, events posted to logs can be out of sequence and not coordinated. The risks include:
The date of clock events could be modified so that they would not appear on daily/weekly reports
The date could be modified back far enough so that events would be instantly purged at the logging server
The dates on multiple devices could be modified so that causal events would not appear correlated in time
The net result of such tampering would corrupt the logs, therefore crippling the forensic analysis of events.
