NEW QUESTION: 4Your network contains two servers named Server1 and Server2 that run Windows Server 2008.Microsoft System Center Operations Manager (SCOM) 2007 is installed on Server2. The Hyper-V role is installed on Server1.Server1 hosts five child virtual machines that run Windows Server 2003. You need to recommend a solution that enables administrators to monitor the child virtual machines. The solution must gather the following data from the virtual machines: Performance statistics, Event data from the application log. What should you recommend?

A. On each child virtual machine, install a SCOM agent.
B. On Server1, install a SCOM agent.
C. On Server2, install the Microsoft Virtual Server 2005 R2 Management Pack.
D. On Server2, install Microsoft System Center Virtual Machine Manager (SCVMM) 2007.
Answer: A
Explanation: To enable administrators to monitor the child virtual machines and gather Performance statistics and event data from the application log from the virtual machines, you need to install a SCOM agent on each child virtual machine. SCOM is an end-to-end systems management and monitoring system for both physical and virtual systems. It lets you monitor clients, events, services, applications, network devices rather than just servers. If you install SCOM on each child virtual machine it will allow you to monitor each one of them. You don't want to monitor Server1 rather the virtual machines. You should not install it on Server1 because you have virtual machines on it.
