NEW QUESTION: 1Scenario: An administrator configured an LDAP authentication policy and bound it globally. The only system group configured on the Netscaler is NS_Admins. After reviewing the security logs, the administrator notices that users in the External_Contractors LDAP group are able to log on to NetScaler using SSH; however, members of the External_Contractors group are NOT authorized to run any commands. Which action could the administrator take to prevent the members of the External_Contractors LDAP Group from logging on to NetScaler using SSH without affecting other users?A. Specify (!!(memberOf="CN=External_Contractors, CN=Groups, CN=example, CN=com")) as a filter in the properties of the configured LDAP server.B. Create a new command policy with a DENY action. Create a System Group named "External_Contractors" and assign the new command policy to the External_Contractors group.C. Specify (memberOf="CN=External_Contractors, CN=Groups, CN=example, CN=com") as a filter in the properties of the configured LDAP server.D. Configure an authorization policy that allows logon only by members of the "External_Contractors" LDAP Group. Bind the new policy globally.Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2A Blind SQL injection is a type of SQL Injection attack that asks the database true or false questions and determines the answer based on the application response. This attack is often used when the web application is configured to show generic error messages, but has not mitigated the code that is vulnerable to SQL injection. It is performed when an error message is not received from application while trying to exploit SQL vulnerabilities. The developer's specific message is displayed instead of an error message. So it is quite difficult to find SQL vulnerability in such cases. A pen tester is trying to extract the database name by using a blind SQL injection. He tests the database using the below query and finally finds the database name.
