NEW QUESTION: 1The main issue with RAID Level 1 is that the one-for-one ratio is:A. very expensive, resulting in the highest cost per megabyte of data capacity.B. very unreliable resulting in a greater risk of losing data.C. very reliable resulting in a lower risk of losing data.D. very inexpensive, resulting in the lowest cost per megabyte of data capacity.Answer: A
Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:RAID Level 1 is commonly called mirroring. It mirrors the data from one disk or set of disks by duplicating the data onto another disk or set of disks. This is often implemented by a one-for-one disk to disk ratio:Each drive is mirrored to an equal drive partner that is continually being updated with current data. If one drive fails, the system automatically gets the data from the other drive. The main issue with this level of RAID is that the one-for-one ratio is very expensive - resulting in the highest cost per megabyte of data capacity. This level effectively doubles the amount of hard drives you need, therefore it is usually best for smaller capacity systems.Incorrect Answers:B: RAID Level 1 is not inexpensive, resulting in the lowest cost per megabyte of data capacity; it is the opposite.C: RAID Level 1 is not unreliable resulting in a greater risk of losing data; it is the opposite.D: RAID Level 1 is very reliable resulting in a lower risk of losing data. However, this is not an 'issue', it's a good thing.

NEW QUESTION: 4How is the internal transfer rate of disk drives defined?A. Speed at which data moves from a platter's surface to the internal bufferB. Speed at which data moves from the read/write head to the platterC. Speed at which data moves from internal buffer to the host interfaceD. Speed at which data moves from the innermost cylinder to the read/write headAnswer: A*Explanation:Data Transfer Rate The data transfer rate (also called transfer rate) refers to the average amount of data per unit time that the drive can deliver to the HBA. In a read operation, the data first moves from disk platters to R/W heads; then it moves to the drive's internal buffer. Finally, data moves from the buffer through the interface to the host HBA. In a write operation, the data moves from the HBA to the internal buffer of the disk drive through the drive's interface. The data then moves from the buffer to the R/W heads. Finally, it moves from the R/W heads to the platters. The data transfer rates during the R/W operations are measured in terms of internal and external transfer rates, as shown in the slide.Internal transfer rate is the speed at which data moves from a platter's surface to the internal buffer (cache) of the disk. The internal transfer rate takes into account factors such as the seek time and rotational latency. External transfer rate is the rate at which data can move through the interface to the HBA. The external transfer rate is generally the advertised speed of the interface, such as 133 MB/s for ATA. The sustained external transfer rate is lower than the interface speed.EMC E10-001 Student Resource Guide. Module 2: Data Center Environment
