Explanation:If you have manually installed an agent on a Domain Controller or the Domain Controller is using a GatewayServer to communicate within a Management Group then you might well see the following script errors:AD Database and Log : The script 'AD Database and Log' failed to create object'McActiveDir.ActiveDirectory'.The error returned was: 'ActiveX component can't create object' (0x1AD)orAD Lost And Found Object Count : The script 'AD Lost And Found Object Count' failed to create object'McActiveDir.ActiveDirectory'. This is an unexpected error.The error returned was 'ActiveX component can't create object' (0x1AD)This is because the AD Management Pack requires a Help Object (ooMADS.msi) which is installed automatically on a push install via a Management Server. The file can be copied and manually installed from the OpsMgr software ... there is a HelpObjects folder where ooMADS.msi can be run from).
