What factors should be considered when choosing how to specify and deploy OES policy decision points (PDPs)?A. If a policy enforcement point exists in the DMZ, then a remote PDP should be deployed behind the inner firewall.B. OES includes a security provider for Oracle WebLogic Server that will handle policy decisions locally.C. It is best to use a local PDP whenever possible to avoid network calls between the PEP and PDP. For example, web servers located in the DMZ might leverage a central PDP, deployed behind a firewall. Policy enforcement is still local to the web servers but decisions are made remotely.C: OES integrates with OPSS (and other security platforms) to enable the use of local PEPs and PDPs.OPSS is a standards-based Java framework of plug-in security services and APIs.It provides the platform security for Oracle WebLogic Server.Note: OES is a fine-grained authorization engine that simplifies the management of complex entitlement policies.
