NEW QUESTION: 1After a recent breach, the security administrator performs a wireless survey of the corporate network. The security administrator notices a problem with the following output:MAC SSID ENCRYPTION POWER BEACONS00:10:A1:36:12:CC MYCORP WPA2 CCMP 60 120200:10:A1:49:FC:37 MYCORP WPA2 CCMP 70 9102FB:90:11:42:FA:99 MYCORP WPA2 CCMP 40 303100:10:A1:AA:BB:CC MYCORP WPA2 CCMP 55 2021 00:10:A1:FA:B1:07 MYCORP WPA2 CCMP 30 6044Given that the corporate wireless network has been standardized, which of the following attacks is underway?A. Evil twinB. DDoSC. IV attackD. Rogue APAnswer: A

Explanation:The question states that the corporate wireless network has been standardized. By 'standardized' it means the wireless network access points are running on hardware from the same vendor. We can see this from the MAC addresses used. The first half of a MAC address is vendor specific. The second half is network adapter specific. We have four devices with MAC addresses that start with 00:10:A1. The "odd one out" is the device with a MAC address starting FB:90:11. This device is from a different vendor. The SSID of the wireless network on this access point is the same as the other legitimate access points. Therefore, the access point with a MAC address starting FB:90:11 is impersonating the corporate access points. This is known as an Evil Twin.An evil twin, in the context of network security, is a rogue or fake wireless access point (WAP) that appears as a genuine hotspot offered by a legitimate provider. In an evil twin attack, an eavesdropper or hacker fraudulently creates this rogue hotspot to collect the personal data of unsuspecting users. Sensitive data can be stolen by spying on a connection or using a phishing technique. For example, a hacker using an evil twin exploit may be positioned near an authentic Wi-Fi access point and discover the service set identifier (SSID) and frequency. The hacker may then send a radio signal using the exact same frequency and SSID. To end users, the rogue evil twin appears as their legitimate hotspot with the same name. In wireless transmissions, evil twins are not a new phenomenon. Historically, they were known as honeypots or base station clones. With the advancement of wireless technology and the use of wireless devices in public areas, it is very easy for novice users to set up evil twin exploits.

NEW QUESTION: 2You are the project manager of your project. You have to analyze various project risks. You have opted for quantitative analysis instead of qualitative risk analysis. What is the MOST significant drawback of using quantitative analysis over qualitative risk analysis?A. lower objectivityB. higher reliance on skilled personnelC. lower management buy-inD. higher costAnswer: D*Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Quantitative risk analysis is generally more complex and thus is costlier than qualitative risk analysis.Incorrect Answers:A: Neither of the two risk analysis methods is fully objective. Qualitative method subjectively assigns high, medium and low frequency and impact categories to a specific risk, whereas quantitative method subjectivity expressed in mathematical "weights".C: To be effective, both processes require personnel who have a good understanding of the business. So there is equal requirement of skilled personnel in both. D: Quantitative analysis generally has a better buy-in than qualitative analysis to the point where it can cause over-reliance on the results. Hence this option is not correct.

NEW QUESTION: 3A. Option B. Option AC. Option CD. Option D Answer: B
