NEW QUESTION: 4Joe, a security administrator, is concerned with users tailgating into the restricted areas. Given a limited budget, which of the following would BEST assist Joe with detecting this activity?A. Place a full-time guard at the entrance to confirm user identity.*B. Revoke all proximity badge access to make users justify access.*C. Install a motion detector near the entrance.*D. Install a camera and DVR at the entrance to monitor access.*Answer: D
Explanation: Tailgating is a favorite method of gaining entry to electronically locked systems by following someone through the door they just unlocked. With a limited budget installing a camera and DVR at the entrance to monitor access to the restricted areas is the most feasible solution. The benefit of a camera (also known as closed-circuit television, or CCTV) is that it is always running and can record everything it sees, creating evidence that can be admissible in court if necessary.
