Answer: AExplanation:From the output of the "show ip ospf database" command (although this command is not shown) we can conclude this is an ASBR (with Advertising Router is itself) and E0/1 is the ASBR's next hop interface for other routers to reach network 192.168.10.0.The Forwarding Address is determined by these conditions:
* The forwarding address is set to 0.0.0.0 if the ASBR redistributes routes and OSPF is not enabled on the next hop interface for those routes.
* These conditions set the forwarding address field to a non-zero address:
+ OSPF is enabled on the ASBR's next hop interface AND
+ ASBR's next hop interface is non-passive under OSPF AND
+ ASBR's next hop interface is not point-to-point AND
+ ASBR's next hop interface is not point-to-multipoint AND
+ ASBR's next hop interface address falls under the network range
