NEW QUESTION: 1 You are a test developer using Microsoft Test Manager (MTM). You are developing a test case that must be run multiple times with different input values for a specific field each time. You have a list of values that will be used for the input. You need to modify the test to enter each value into the field. What should you do? A. Create test steps for each input value in the Action column. B. Insert a parameter into the Expected Results column of the test step and enter the input values into Parameter values pane. C. Insert a parameter into the Action column of the test step. D. Insert a parameter into the Action column of the test step and enter the input values into the Parameter Values pane. Answer: D Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Add parameters to a test case Create a parameter by typing a name preceded by "@" in the actions and expected results of your test steps. Note: When you write a manual test, you often want to specify that the test should be repeated several times with different test data. For example, if your users can add different quantities of a product to a shopping cart, then you want to check that a quantity of 200 works just as well as a quantity of 1. To do this, you insert parameters in your test steps. Along with the test steps, you provide a table of parameter values. Reference: Repeat a test with different data
