NEW QUESTION: 2 A technical seller has been invited to an initial meeting with a client. In advance, the client has provided some details regarding their business problem and pain points, as well as some data showing the opportunity for optimization. The sales team is setting high expectations to make a strong initial impression on this client. Their goal for this meeting is to demonstrate the potential for a high level of return from a Decision Optimization solution. To achieve this goal the technical seller should deliver:
A. Proof of Concept because it uses client data.
B. demo, to provide an initial high-level view of the product, emphasizing key features and prompting useful feedback.
C. demo, as it requires a minimal investment of effort.
D. Proof of Concept as this is the best way to focus on the clients requirements during the preparation effort.
Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3 Note: This question is part of series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution. After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen. You have an Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) tenant that contains a group named Group1. You need to enable multi-factor authentication (MFA) for the users in Group1 only. Solution: From Multi-Factor Authentication, you select , and you provide a CSV file that contains the members of Group1. Does this meet the goal?
A. Yes
B. No
Answer: B Explanation: Explanation We should use a Conditional Access policy. Note: There are two ways to secure user sign-in events by requiring multi-factor authentication in Azure AD. The first, and preferred, option is to set up a Conditional Access policy that requires multi-factor authentication under certain conditions. The second option is to enable each user for Azure Multi-Factor Authentication. When users are enabled individually, they perform multi-factor authentication each time they sign in (with some exceptions, such as when they sign in from trusted IP addresses or when the remembered devices feature is turned on). Enabling Azure Multi-Factor Authentication using Conditional Access policies is the recommended approach. Changing user states is no longer recommended unless your licenses don't include Conditional Access as it requires users to perform MFA every time they sign in. Reference:
