NEW QUESTION: 1In ISO 27001 ISMS, which three of these certification process phases are required to collect information for ISO 27001? (Choose three.)A. observationB. post-auditC. certification auditD. major complianceE. pre-auditF. discoverAnswer: B,C,E*Explanation:The ISO/IEC 27001 certification process is essentially the same as that for ISO 9000 and other management systems. It is an external audit of the organization's ISMS (Information Security Management System) in three main phases:- Pre-audit - having engaged an accredited certification body, they will request copies of your ISMS documentation, your policy manual etc. and may request a short on-site visit to introduce themselves and identify contacts for the next phase. When you are ready, they will schedule the certification audit itself by mutual agreement.- Certification audit - this is the formal audit itself. One or more auditors from the accredited certification body will come on site, work their way systematically through their audit checklists, checking things. They will check your ISMS policies, standards and procedures against the requirements identified in ISO/IEC 27001, and also seek evidence that people follow the documentation in practice (i.e. the auditors' favorite "Show me!"). They will gather and assess evidence including artifacts produced by the ISMS processes (such as records authorizing certain users to have certain access rights to certain systems, or minutes of management meetings confirming approval of policies) or by directly observing ISMS processes in action.- Post-audit - the results of the audit will be reported formally back to management. Depending on how the audit went and on the auditors' standard audit processes, they will typically raise the following (in increasing order of severity):Reference:
