NEW QUESTION: 1Event Listener rules can be built on attributes for _____.A. RoleB. user accountsC. business structureD. global usersE. roles and global usersAnswer: D*Explanation: The Event Listener mechanism enables an administrator to create listeners to business events that are occurring in the system and take action when those events are detected. An example of a business event is a user update, which occurs when one or more of the user's attributes are updated. See condition in step 6) below: Event Listeners introduce automated post import evaluation of users by automatically triggering attestations or SoD policy scans based on user on-boarding or job transfers. This completely automates critical job transfer based access reviews; ensuring employees moving across business structures are not carrying forth unnecessary access. Note (on B not C): The association between a user and Business Unit is shown in a derived table, BU_GLOBALUSERS. This table carries the BUSINESSUNITKEY and GLOBALUSERKEY. To Create a New Event Listener The new event listener form opens. For example, when a user is updated, a condition can check if the user's title property or location property has changed. The Action Types form opens, specifying a list of actions that will be taken by the system when events that match the condition occur in the system. *User to Business Structure Rule Scan - Runs selected user-to-business structure rules. *Role Membership Rules - Runs the selected role membership rules on users. *IDA Policy Scan - Run selected identity audit policies on users based on a condition. *User Entitlement Certification Creation - Creates a user entitlement certification.
