NEW QUESTION: 1You administer computers in your company network. All computers in the network belong to a single Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS) domain. The network includes Windows Server 2012 servers located in a perimeter network. You add a new Windows 8.1 computer to the perimeter network. You enable only Remote Desktop access to the Windows 8.1 computer from other computers located outside the perimeter network. You need to use the Windows 8.1 computer to manage the Windows servers in the perimeter network. What should you do?A. Enable PowerShell Remoting on the Windows 8.1 computer.B. Add the Windows 8.1 computer as a Trusted Host to the servers.C. Install Remote Server Administration Tools for Windows 8.1 (RSAT) on the Windows 8.1 computer.D. Add the Windows 8.1 computer as a Trusted Host to computers outside the perimeter network.Answer: C*Explanation: <http://www.microsoft.com/en-gb/download/details.aspx?id=28972> Remote Server Administration Tools for Windows 8 Remote Server Administration Tools for Windows 8 enables IT administrators to manage roles and features that are installed on computers that are running Windows Server 2012 from a remote computer that is running Windows 8. Further Information: <http://searchnetworking.techtarget.com/tip/Perimeter-networks> Perimeter networks A perimeter network is the network closest to a router that is not under your control. Usually a perimeter network is the final step a packet takes traversing one of your networks on its way to the internet; and conversely the first network encountered by incoming traffic from the Internet. Most administrators create perimeter networks in order to place their firewall in between them and the outside world so that they can filter packet traffic. Most perimeter networks are part of the DMZ (Demilitarized Zone) if they exist at all. However, perimeter networks have some additional utilities that you might want to consider when deciding where to place systems and services. <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/hh849694.aspx> Enable-PSRemoting The Enable-PSRemoting cmdlet configures the computer to receive Windows PowerShell remote commands that are sent by using the WS-Management technology. On Windows Server@ 2012, Windows PowerShell remoting is enabled by default. You can use Enable-PSRemoting to enable Windows PowerShell remoting on other supported versions of Windows and to re-enable remoting on Windows Server 2012 if it becomes disabled. You need to run this command only once on each computer that will receive commands. You do not need to run it on computers that only send commands. Because the configuration activates listeners, it is prudent to run it only where it is needed.

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/magazine/ff700227.aspx> Enable and Use Remote Commands in Windows PowerShell The Windows PowerShell remoting features are supported by the WS-Management protocol and the Windows Remote Management (WinRM) service that implements WS-Management in Windows. In many cases, you will be able to work with remote computers in other domains. However, if the remote computer is not in a trusted domain, the remote computer might not be able to authenticate your credentials. To enable authentication, you need to add the remote computer to the list of trusted hosts for the local computer in WinRM.

NEW QUESTION: 2 ABC.com has a network that consists of a single Active Directory domain. A technician has accidentally deleted an Organizational unit (OU) on the domain controller. As an administrator of ABC.com, you are in process of restoring the OU. You need to execute a non-authoritative restore before an authoritative restore of the OU. Which backup should you use to perform non-authoritative restore of Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS) without disturbing other data stored on domain controller? A. Backup of the volume that hosts Operating system B. Backup of all the volumes C. Critical volume backup D. all of the above E. Backup of AD DS folders Answer: C Explanation:

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc730683%28v=ws.10%29.aspx> Performing a Nonauthoritative Restore of AD DS To perform a nonauthoritative restore of Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS), you need at least a system state backup. To restore a system state backup, use the `wbadmin start systemstaterecovery` command. The procedure in this topic uses the `wbadmin start systemstaterecovery` command. You can also use a critical-volume backup to perform a nonauthoritative restore, or a full server backup if you do not have a system state or critical-volume backup. A full server backup is generally larger than a critical-volume backup or system state backup. Restoring a full server backup not only rolls back data in AD DS to the time of backup, but it also rolls back all data in other volumes. Rolling back this additional data is not necessary to achieve nonauthoritative restore of AD DS. To restore a critical-volume backup or full server backup, use the `wbadmin start recovery` command.

NEW QUESTION: 3 A company has two AWS account developers and production. All application send logs to a specific Amazon bucket for each account, and the Developers are requesting access to the production account S3 buckets to view the logs? Which is the MOST efficient way to provide the Developers with access? A. Create IAM users for each Developer on the production account and add the Developers to an IAM group that provides read-only access to the S3 log bucket B. Create a resource-based policy for the S3 bucket on the production account that grant access to the development account and then delegate the development account C. Create an Amazon EC2 bastion host with an IAM role attached to it that has access to it that has production S3 log bucket and then provision access for the Developers on the host D. Create an AWS Lambda function with an IAM role attached to it that has access to be accounts' S3 buckets Put me logs from the production S3 bucket to the development S3 bucket
