NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following is the sequence of events for the 'Inbound Processing and Receipt Confirmation without WM' process? (Only one answer is correct)A. Create inbound delivery -> Post goods receipt -> Track and evaluate procurement process with SCEMB. Receive advanced shipping notification -> Create inbound delivery -> Post goods receipt -> Send proof of delivery -> Track and evaluate procurement process with SCEMC. Receive advanced shipping notification -> Create inbound delivery -> Send proof of delivery -> Track and evaluate procurement process with SCEMAnswer: BExplanation:Explanation/Reference:You can use this business process for your inbound processing and receipt confirmation.Whenever a company requires a product to be procured from an external source of supply,whether for use in production (raw materials) or for direct consumption (C-materials), theproduct will be delivered according to the official procurement document (a PO) agreedbetween two business partners.The arrival of the goods could be announced by an advanced shipping notification (ASN)from the supplier. This states that the goods are to be delivered in a certain quantity at a defined date and time at a defined company location.For the delivered product, an inbound delivery is selected and processed for put away.Once the goods are taken into stock, a goods receipt must be posted.The actual physical receipt of materials at the warehouse or the receiving locations can becontrolled in different levels of detail. For example, you can control the process only at adocument level using purchase orders and stock transports orders for inbound deliveriesand shipments, or you can go up to the pallet and material level.The receiving process is supported in different ways depending on your needs. Optionally,you can use inbound deliveries, advanced material flow, and process control functions.These options include yard management, and warehouse management with task and resource management controlling the process down to pallet and package level using advanced strategies. Inbound processing reflects the receipt of materials that are delivered to a receiving location. This receipt can be processed based on purchase orders, stock transport orders, or a returns order. It includes the notification of goods to be received, the put away, goods receipt posting, and the proof-of-delivery (POD) message to the supplier. By viewing the goods receipt from two perspectives, it is possible to follow the purchase order process and the physical material movements separately.Process Flow You can use the account assignment function in SAP Supplier Relationship Management (SAP SRM) for Purchase Order, Confirmations etc.
