NEW QUESTION: 1

Linuxで実行されているDockerデーモンにリモートでアクセスするために何をする必要がありますか？A. TCPソケットを有効にするB. Docker APIに証明書認証を追加しますC.

暗号化レベルをTLSに変更しますD. Docker APIをUNIXソケットにバインドしますAnswer: A

Explanation:The Docker daemon can listen for Docker Remote API requests via three different types of Socket:unix, tcp, and fd.By default, a unix domain socket (or IPC socket) is created at /var/run/docker.sock, requiring either root permission, or docker group membership. If you need to access the Docker daemon remotely, you need to enable the tcp Socket. Beware that the default setup provides un- encrypted and un-authenticated direct access to the Docker daemon - and should be secured either using the built in HTTPS encrypted socket or by putting a secure web proxy in front of it.Reference:

Use S3 cross-Region replication to copy the data from the primary Region to the disaster recovery Region.F. Have a script import the data into DynamoDB in a disaster recovery scenario.
