NEW QUESTION: 1Your department creates regular analytics reports from your company's log files. All log data is collected in Amazon S3 and processed by daily Amazon Elastic MapReduce (EMR) jobs that generate daily PDF reports and aggregated tables in CSV format for an Amazon Redshift data warehouse. Your CFO requests that you optimize the cost structure for this system. Which of the following alternatives will lower costs without compromising average performance of the system or data integrity for the raw data?
A. Use reduced redundancy storage (RRS) for PDF and .csv data in Amazon S3. Add Spot Instances to Amazon EMR jobs. Use Reserved Instances for Amazon Redshift.
B. Use reduced redundancy storage (RRS) for PDF and .csv data in S3. Add Spot Instances to EMR jobs. Use Spot Instances for Amazon Redshift.
C. Use reduced redundancy storage (RRS) for all data in S3. Use a combination of Spot Instances and Reserved Instances for Amazon EMR jobs. Use Reserved Instances for Amazon Redshift.
D. Use reduced redundancy storage (RRS) for all data in Amazon S3. Add Spot Instances to Amazon EMR jobs. Use Reserved Instances for Amazon Redshift.
Answer: D Explanation: Explanation Reserved Instances (a.k.a. Reserved Nodes) are appropriate for steady-state production workloads, and offer significant discounts over On-Demand pricing.

<https://aws.amazon.com/redshift>Q: What are some EMR best practices? If you are running EMR in production you should specify an AMI version, Hive version, Pig version, etc. to make sure the version does not change unexpectedly (e.g. when EMR later adds support for a newer version). If your cluster is mission critical, only use Spot instances for task nodes because if the Spot price increases you may lose the instances. In development, use logging and enable debugging to spot and correct errors faster. If you are using GZIP, keep your file size to 1-2 GB because GZIP files cannot be split. NEW QUESTION: 4 You are a network administrator at Cisco and have been instructed to design as well as implement a SAFE network. You have done so, but now the users on the network complain that they still encounter some DoS attacks on specific hosts in the E-commerce module. You already place limits on the connection rate at the firewall, but the problem prevails. What else can you do to ameliorate the effects of these attacks? A. Move the affected servers to the DMZ B. Ensure all relevant OS patches have been applied C. Block all TCP traffic to these servers at the internet firewall D. Block all UDP traffic to these servers at the internet firewall E. Practice Load-balancing between multiple servers with similar applications Answer: B

Explanation: To secure hosts, pay careful attention to each of the components within the systems. Keep any systems up-to-date with the latest patches, fixes, and so forth. In particular, pay attention to how these patches affect the operation of other system components. Evaluate all updates on test systems before you implement them in a production environment. Failure to do so might result in the patch itself causing a denial of service (DoS). Reference: SAFE Extending the Security Blueprint to Small, Midsize, and Remote-User Networks Page 8
