NEW QUESTION: 1 According to estimates, about one third of all business failures are caused by:
A. Theft from employees
B. None of the above
C. Theft from outsiders
D. Poor quality of product or service
E. Bad management
Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2 A System Administrator begins receiving widespread reports of traffic latency and disruption from users and wants to determine which device in a network is causing the problem. Which step can the System Administrator take to rule out the XGS?
A. Ping sample hosts from the command line and note the time.
B. Use the dpi off command to disable inspection.
C. Restart the packet processing daemon.
D. Clear all active quarantine rules.
Answer: B
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Question How can you bypass inspection on QRadar Network Security (XGS) to troubleshoot issues like latency or the XGS blocking traffic? Answer Starting in firmware 5.3.1.4 and continuing, you have the ability to bypass the inspection engine on the XGS for certain testing scenarios (such as traffic being blocked or latency through the XGS). All of the analysis is a result of the Protocol Analysis Module (PAM). PAM is responsible for Network Access Policy (NAP) rules, IPS, SSL inspection, URL analysis, and so on. Bypassing PAM allows the traffic to go through unanalyzed to help determine whether the XGS is causing the issue. To bypass PAM, do the following:
1. SSH to the device and login as admin.
2. Enter analysis to enter the analysis module.
3. To disable PAM, enter the following: dpi off
You should now see a message that says: DPI is bypassed. This setting will be reverted upon next packet processing service restart.
