NEW QUESTION: 1Which explanations of antenna usage are the most accurate? (Choose 2)A. An omni-directional antenna is well-suited to provide wireless coverage in most homes.B. A grid antenna is designed to perform favorably as part of an outdoor point-to-point link under windy conditions.C. Patch antennas are mounted in the center of a lecture hall to provide circular coverage.D. A dipole antenna is mounted to a perimeter wall in school buildings to provide coverage inside the building.E. A parabolic dish antenna is ideal for directing a beam down a long hallway.Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION: 2A customer is concerned that its volumes would not have access to the full system cache but wants to create pools to limit the amount of space that different departments use. Which activity allows the customer to meet these requirements?A. Create a single parent pool that contains smaller child poolsB. Create LUN size policy in the GUI and set system cache to global via the CLICC. Create a single storage pool that contains all the MDisksD. Create several small pools that correspond to LUN size policiesAnswer: A*Explanation: Before V7.4, the disk space of a storage pool was provided from MDisks, so the capacity of a storage pool depended on the MDisks' capacity. Creating or splitting a storage pool is not possible and a user cannot freely make a storage pool with a particular capacity they want. A child pool is a new logical object that is created from a physical storage pool and provides most of the functions that Pools have (for example, volume creation), but the user can specify the capacity of the child pool at creation. A child pool is an object similar to a storage pool, and can be used interchangeably with a storage pool. It supports volume copy and migration.
