NEW QUESTION: 1 Which two statements are true about a common user? A. A common user can be granted only a common role. B. A common user always uses the global temporary tablespace that is defined at the CDB level as the default temporary tablespace. C. A common user can have a local schema in a PDB. D. A common user with the create user privilege can create other common users, as well as local users. E. A common user connected to a pluggable database (PDB) can exercise privileges across other PDBs. Answer: A,C

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which statement about OSPF multiaccess segments is true? A. The router that sent the first hello message is elected first. B. The backup designated router is elected first. C. The designated router is elected first. D. The designated and backup designated routers are elected at the same time. Answer: B Explanation: According to the RFC, the BDR is actually elected first, followed by the DR. The RFC explains why: "The reason behind the election algorithm's complexity is the desire for an orderly transition from Backup Designated Router to Designated Router, when the current Designated Router fails. This orderly transition is ensured through the introduction of hysteresis: no new Backup Designated Router can be chosen until the old Backup accepts its new Designated Router responsibilities. The above procedure may elect the same router to be both Designated Router and Backup Designated Router, although that router will never be the calculating router (Router X) itself."
