NEW QUESTION: 2 Kylie Autumn, CFA, is a consultant with Tri-Vision Group. Robert Lullum, Senior Vice President at Langsford Investments, has asked for assistance with the evaluation of mortgage-backed and collateralized mortgage obligation (CMO) derivative securities for potential inclusion in several client portfolios. Langsford Investments mainly deals with equity investments and REITs, but the company recently purchased a small firm that invests mainly in fixed-income securities. Lullum has done some research on the appropriate spread measures and option valuation models for fixed-income securities and wants to clarify some points. He wants to know if the following statements are correct: Statement 1: The proper spread measure for option-free corporate bonds is the nominal spread. Statement 2: Callable corporate bonds and mortgage-backed securities should be measured using the option-adjusted spread. Statement 3: The Z-spread is appropriate for credit card ABS and auto loan ABS. While Lullum meets with Autumn, Janet Van Ark, CFA charterholder and equity-income portfolio manager for Langsford, is attempting to purchase bonds that may also provide her with equity exposure in the future. She has decided to analyze an 8% annual coupon bond with exactly 20 years to maturity. The bonds are convertible into 10 common shares for each $ 1,000 of par (face) value. The bond's market price is $920, and the common stock has a market price of $40. Van Ark estimates that the stock will increase in value to $70 within the next two years. The stock's annual dividend is $0.40 per share, and the market yield on comparable non-convertible bonds is 9.5%. Carl Leighton, a Langsford analyst and Level 2 CFA candidate, works with mortgage-backed and other asset-based securities. He provides Lullum with a list of credit enhancements for asset-backed securities, which includes letters of credit, excess servicing spread funds, overcollateralization, and bond insurance. Lullum then asks him for a status report of the firm's exposure to paythrough securities. He also asks Leighton to calculate the single-monthly mortality rate (SMM) and estimate the prepayment for the month for a seasoned mortgage pool with a $500,000 principal balance remaining. The scheduled monthly principal payment is $ 150 and the conditional prepayment rate (CPR) is 7%. How many of the three statements on appropriate spread measures and valuation models are correct? A. None of the three statements are correct. B. Only one statement is correct. C. Only two statements are correct. Answer: B Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Statement 1 is incorrect. The Z-spread is the appropriate spread measure for option-free corporate bonds. Statement 2 is also incorrect, as it should say option-adjusted spread or "option-re moved spread." Statement 3 is correct. (Study Session 15, LOS 57. i)

Incorrect: typeof is an operator to obtain a type known at compile-time (or at least a generic type parameter). The operand of typeof is always the name of a type or type parameter - never an expression with a value (e.g. a variable). See the C# language specification for more details.
