NEW QUESTION: 4Your customer's network includes two offices that are connected by a 100-megabits per second (Mbps) wide area network (WAN) link. Each office has 200 employees. Most employees work remotely and connect to the internal network by using a virtual private network (VPN).Your customer plans to deploy Lync to support peer-to-peer (P2P) and conference sessions between employees. The customer wants to minimize Lync workload at the existing VPN server appliance.You prepare modeling of Lync traffic for the customer's network.You need to determine what additional information should be collected and included in the modeling calculation.Which two pieces of information should you collect? (Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose two.)A. historic workload of the VPN applianceB. encryption protocols used to protect VPN communicationsC. codecs to be used by Lync clientsD. proposed location of the Lync Edge serverAnswer: A,C*Explanation:Note:* Bandwidth figures include the protocol overheads for IP, UDP, RTP, and SRTP. This is why the Microsoft bandwidth figures for standard codecs are different from those quoted by other VoIP suppliers, who only state the raw codec figure, and not the entire packet overhead.
