NEW QUESTION: 3Which three control plane subinterfaces are available when implementing Cisco IOS Control Plane Protection? (Choose three.)A. CEF-exceptionB. fast-cacheC. managementD. CPUE. transitF. hostAnswer: A,E,F*Explanation:Host subinterface: This interface receives all control plane IP traffic that is directly destined for one of the router interfaces (physical and loopback). Examples of control plane host IP traffic include tunnel termination traffic; management traffic; and routing protocols such as SSH, SNMP, internal BGP (iBGP), and EIGRP. All host traffic terminates on and is processed by the router. Transit subinterface: This subinterface receives all control plane IP traffic that is software switched by the route processor. This traffic consists of packets that are not directly destined to the router itself but rather are traffic traversing through the router. Nonterminating tunnels handled by the router are an example of this type of control plane traffic. Control Plane Protection allows specific aggregate policing of all traffic received at this subinterface. CEF-exception subinterface: This control plane subinterface receives all traffic that is either redirected as a result of a configured input feature in the CEF packet forwarding path for process switching or directly enqueued in the control plane input queue by the interface driver (that is, ARP, external BGP (eBGP), OSPF, LDP, Layer 2 keepalives, and all non-IP host traffic). Control Plane Protection allows specific aggregate policing of this type of control plane traffic.
