NEW QUESTION: 1DRAG DROPAnswer: Explanation:

NEW QUESTION: 2The integration team has reported a problem in testing a few deployed MDBs. By design, each MDB listens to one of four named queues. Two producers write messages to each queue. The test issues messages of the same payload type that each producer will send, but varies the number or size of these messages to measure the messaging server's performance. The team has noticed that the utilization remains at the same high rate any time the test writes messages destined for the third MDB. The message server log does not reveal any failure in sending messages to this MDB. Which anticipation expresses cause for this condition?A. Hot PotatoB. Golden HammerC. Leaky AbstractionD. Cache less CowAnswer: A

NEW QUESTION: 4You create an Azure Migrate project named TestMig in a resource group named test-migration. You need to discover which on-premises virtual machines to assess for migration. Which three actions should you perform in sequence? To answer, select the appropriate actions from the list of actions to the answer area and arrange them in the correct order.Answer: Explanation:Explanation Step 1: Download the OVA file for the collection appliance Azure Migrate uses an on-premises VM called the collector appliance, to discover information about your on-premises machines. To create the appliance, you download a setup file in Open Virtualization Appliance (.ova) format, and import it as a VM on your on-premises vCenter Server. Step 2: Create a migration group in the project For the purposes of assessment, you gather the discovered VMs into groups. For example, you might group VMs that run the same application. For more precise grouping, you can use dependency visualization to view dependencies of a specific machine, or for all machines in a group and refine the group. Step 3: Create an assessment in the project After a group is defined, you create an assessment for it. References: <https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/azure/migrate/migrate-overview>
