NEW QUESTION: 2Which two protocols are used in a server-based AAA deployment? (Choose two.)A. WCCPB. TACACS+C. RADIUSD. HTTPE. HTTPAnswer: B,C*Explanation:Remote Security Database Standards Supported by Cisco Several remote security database standards have been written to provide uniform access control for network equipment and users. A variety of applications have been developed as shareware and as commercial products to conform to the standards. Cisco network equipment supports the three primary security server protocols: TACACS+, RADIUS, and Kerberos. TACACS+ and RADIUS are the predominant security server protocols used for AAA with network access servers, routers, and firewalls. These protocols are used to communicate access control information between the security server and the network equipment. Cisco has also developed the Cisco Secure ACS family of remote security databases to support the TACACS+ and RADIUS protocols.
