NEW QUESTION: 2 A network administrator is connecting PC hosts A and B directly through their Ethernet interfaces as shown in the graphic. Ping attempts between the hosts are unsuccessful. What can be done to provide connectivity between the hosts? (Choose two.) A. The hosts must be reconfigured to use private IP addresses for direct connections of this type. B. A default gateway needs to be set on each host. C. The subnet masks should be set to 255.255.255.0 D. The subnet masks should be set to 255.255.255.192 E. A crossover cable should be used in place of the straight-through cable. F. A rollover cable should be used in place of the straight-through cable. Answer: C, E Explanation: If you need to connect two computers but you don't have access to a network and can't set up an ad hoc network, you can use an Ethernet crossover cable to create a direct cable connection. Generally speaking, a crossover cable is constructed by reversing (or crossing over) the order of the wires inside so that it can connect two computers directly. A crossover cable looks almost exactly like a regular Ethernet cable (a straight-through cable), so make sure you have a crossover cable before following these steps. Both devices need to be on the same subnet, and since one PC is using 192.1.1.20 and the other is using 192.1.1.201, the subnet mask should be changed to 255.255.255.0.
