NEW QUESTION: 2Regarding the EPS bearer, which of the following is correct?A. All traffic flows that uniquely identify the different QCI between a UE and a serving gatewayB. All traffic flows that uniquely identify the different QCI between a UE and a serving gateway C. All traffic flows that uniquely identify the same QoS between a UE and an MMED. All traffic flows that uniquely identify the same QoS between a UE and a serving gatewayAnswer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3Refer to the exhibit. Which statement correctly explains the bgp graceful-restart command?A. This command is only required on the NSF-aware routers to enable BGP graceful restart with the BGP peersB. This command is used to enable NSF and is entered on the NSF-capable router, and also on any NSF-aware peerC. This command is used to enable NSF and is entered on the NSF-capable router, and also on any NSF-aware peerD. This command is only required on the NSF-capable routers to enable BGP graceful restart with the BGP peersE. This command is only required on the NSF-capable routers to enable BGP graceful restart with the BGP peersAnswer: CExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation: Graceful restart is supported in recent versions of Cisco IOS software (12.0S) and is supported in Cisco IOS XR software. Graceful restart is the mechanism by which BGP routing peers avoid changes to their forwarding paths following a switchover. If the BGP peer has received this capability, it is aware that the device sending the message is nonstop forwarding (NSF)-capable. Both the NSF-capable router and its BGP peers (NSF-aware peers) need to exchange the graceful restart capability in their OPEN messages, at the time of session establishment. If both peers do not exchange the graceful restart capability, the session will not be graceful restart-capable. If the BGP session is lost during a Route Processor (RP) switchover or BGP process restart, the NSF-aware BGP peer marks all the routes associated with the NSF-capable router as stale; however, it continues to use these routes to make forwarding decisions for a set period of time. This functionality means that no packets are lost while the newly active RP is waiting for convergence of the routing information with its BGP peers. After a failover event occurs, the NSF-capable router reestablishes the session with the BGP peer. In establishing the new session, it sends a new graceful restart message that identifies the NSF-capable router as having restarted. At this point, the routing information is exchanged between the two BGP peers. Once this exchange is complete, the NSF-capable device uses the newly received routing information to update the RIB and the Forwarding Information Base (FIB) with the new forwarding information. The NSF-aware device uses the network information to remove stale routes from its BGP table. The BGP protocol is then fully converged. If a BGP peer does not support the graceful restart capability, it will ignore the graceful restart capability in an OPEN message but will establish a BGP session with the NSF-capable device. This functionality will allow interoperability with non-NSF-aware BGP peers (and without NSF functionality), but the BGP session with non-NSF-aware BGP peers will not be graceful restart-capable.
