NEW QUESTION: 4A. Option B*B. Option C*C. Option E*D. Option D*E. Option A*Answer: E Explanation:Switch Stack Offline Configuration You can use the offline configuration feature to provision (to supply a configuration to) a new switch before it joins the switch stack. You can configure in advance the stack member number, the switch type, and the interfaces associated with a switch that is not currently part of the stack. The configuration that you create on the switch stack is called the provisioned configuration. The switch that is added to the switch stack and that receives this configuration is called the provisioned switch. You manually create the provisioned configuration through the `switchstack-member-number provision-type global configuration` command. The provisioned configuration is automatically created when a switch is added to a switch stack and when no provisioned configuration exists. When you configure the interfaces associated with a provisioned switch (for example, as part of a VLAN), the switch stack accepts the configuration, and the information appears in the running configuration. The interface associated with the provisioned switch is not active, operates as if it is administratively shut down, and then the `shutdown interface` configuration command does not return it to active service. The interface associated with the provisioned switch does not appear in the display of the specific feature; for example, it does not appear in the `show vlan user EXEC` command output. The switch stack retains the provisioned configuration in the running configuration whether or not the provisioned switch is part of the stack. You can save the provisioned configuration to the startup configuration file by entering the `copy running-config startup-config` privileged EXEC command. The startup configuration file ensures that the switch stack can reload and can use the saved information whether or not the provisioned switch is part of the switch stack.

Effects of Adding a Provisioned Switch to a Switch Stack

When you add a provisioned switch to the switch stack, the stack applies either the provisioned configuration or the default configuration. Table 5-1 lists the events that occur when the switch stack compares the provisioned configuration with the provisioned switch.

Table 5-1 Results of Comparing the Provisioned Configuration with the Provisioned Switch Scenario	Result
The stack member numbers and the switch types match.	1. If the stack member number of the provisioned switch matches the stack member number in the provisioned configuration on the stack, and 2. If the switch type of the provisioned switch matches the switch type in the provisioned configuration on the stack. The switch stack applies the provisioned configuration to the provisioned switch and adds it to the stack.
The stack member numbers match but the switch types do not match.	1. If the stack member number of the provisioned switch matches the stack member number in the provisioned configuration on the stack, but 2. provisioned switch does not match the switch type in the provisioned configuration on the stack. The switch stack applies the default configuration to the provisioned switch and adds it to the stack. The provisioned configuration is changed to reflect the new information.
The stack member number is not found in the provisioned configuration.	The stack member number of the provisioned switch is in conflict with an existing stack member. The stack master assigns a new stack member number to the provisioned switch. The stack member numbers and the switch types match:
1. If the new stack member number of the provisioned switch matches the stack member number in the provisioned configuration on the stack, and 2. If the switch type of the provisioned switch matches the switch type in the provisioned configuration on the stack.	The switch stack applies the provisioned configuration to the provisioned switch and adds it to the stack. The provisioned configuration is changed to reflect the new information.
The stack member numbers match, but the switch types do not match:	1. If the stack member number of the provisioned switch matches the stack member number in the provisioned configuration on the stack, but 2. The switch type of the provisioned switch does not match the switch type in the provisioned configuration on the stack.
The switch stack applies the default configuration to the provisioned switch and adds it to the stack. The provisioned configuration is changed to reflect the new information.	The stack member number of the provisioned switch is not found in the provisioned configuration. The switch stack applies the default configuration to the provisioned switch and adds it to the stack.
