NEW QUESTION: 2Your network consists of one Windows Server 2008 domain. The network contains portable computers. You configure a server that runs Windows Server 2008 as a Routing and Remote Access Service (RRAS) server. Users connect remotely to the network through a virtual private network (VPN) connection to the RRAS server from both company-issued portable computers and non-company-issued computers. The relevant portion of the network is shown in the following diagram.You need to prepare the environment to secure remote access to the network. The solution must meet the following requirements:
-Only computers that have Windows Firewall enabled can connect remotely.-Only computers that have the most up-to-date antivirus definitions can connect remotely.-Only computers that run Windows Vista and have the most up-to-date updates can connect remotely. What should you do?A. Implement Authorization Manager.B. Create a domain Group Policy object (GPO). Enable Windows Firewall and publish updated antivirus definitions in the GPO.C. Implement Network Access Protection (NAP) on the perimeter network.D. Install a Microsoft Internet Security and Acceleration Server (ISA) 2006 on the network.*Answer: C*Explanation:To ensure that the computers that connect to the corporate network meet all the required conditions, you need to implement Network Access Protection (NAP) on the perimeter network. NAP uses System HealthAgent (SHA) to check if the specified system health requirements are fulfilled. The SHA can verify whether the Windows Firewall is on; antivirus and antispyware software are installed, enabled, and updated; Microsoft Update Services is enabled, and the most recent security updates are installed.If the system is not in the required state, the SHA can then start a process to remedy the situation. For example, it can enable Windows Firewall or contact a remediation server to update the antivirus signaturesReference: Windows Server 2008 NAP (Network Access Protection) infrastructure
