The Cisco secure access solution is deployed in enterprise environments with various security technologies. The Cisco Identity Services Engine (ISE) offers, among others, the following services: - Authentication (IEEE 802.1X, MAB, WebAuth) - Authorization (VLAN, dACL, SXP or SGT, SGACL, identity-based Cisco Security Group Access (SGA) establishes clouds of trusted networks to build secure networks. Instead of relying on IP-based configuration, access authorization is based on context, including user identity. Encryption in a Cisco secure access solution is not provided by SSL/TLS. Hop-by-hop encryption is accomplished via MACsec. A Cisco secure access solution employs an identity-based firewall. Instead of relying on IP-based configuration, access authorization is based on context, including user identity. Stateful packet inspection builds on the process of packet filtering by analyzing each packet to ensure that the content matches the expected service it is communicating with. For example, stateful inspection would check web traffic data to ensure that it is HTML data. If the data type did not match the acceptable use for the service, stateful packet inspection would block the packet from passing through.
