Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2Lark, a partner in DSJ, a general partnership, wishes to withdraw from the partnership and sell Lark's interest to Ward. All of the other partners in DSJ have agreed to admit Ward as a partner and to hold Lark harmless for the past, present, and future liabilities of DSJ. As a result of Lark's withdrawal and Ward's admission to the partnership, Ward:A. Has the right to participate in DSJ's management.B. Is personally liable for partnership liabilities arising before and after being admitted as a partner.C. Must contribute cash or property to DSJ to be admitted with the same rights as the other partners.D. Acquired only the right to receive Ward's share of DSJ profits.Answer: A*Explanation:Choice "b" is correct. The general rule is that the mere assignment of a partner's interest does not make the assignee a partner. One may become a partner only with the consent of all other partners. Here, all other partner's consented to Ward's becoming a partner. Thus, Ward is a partner with full rights to participate in management. Choice "a" is incorrect. The general rule is that the mere assignment of a partner's interest does not make the assignee a partner. One may become a partner only with the consent of all other partners. Here, all other partner's consented to Ward's becoming a partner. Thus, Ward is a partner with full partner rights. Choice "c" is incorrect. An incoming partner is not liable for debts that the partnership incurred before admission beyond the incoming partner's contribution, but is fully liable for debts incurred after becoming a partner. Choice "d" is incorrect. A partnership is a consensual relationship; there is no requirement of a contribution to become a partner.
