NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. The domain contains a member server named Server 1. Server 1 runs Windows Server 2012 R2 and has the Hyper-V server role installed. You create an external virtual switch named Switch1. Switch1 has the following configurations:- Connection type: External network- Single-root I/O virtualization (SR-IOV): EnabledTen virtual machines connect to Switch1.You need to ensure that all of the virtual machines that connect to Switch1 are isolated from the external network and can connect to each other only. The solution must minimize network downtime for the virtual machines.What should you do?A. Change the Connection type of Switch1 to Private network.B. Remove Switch1 and recreate Switch1 as a private network.C. Change the Connection type of Switch1 to Internal network.D. Remove Switch1 and recreate Switch1 as an internal network.Answer: AExplanation:You can change the connection type of a virtual switch from the virtual switch manager without having to remove it.A private virtual network is isolated from all external network traffic on the virtualization server, as well any network traffic between the management operating system and the external network.This type of network is useful when you need to create an isolated networking environment,such as an isolated test

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which 802.1x component enforces the network access policy?
A. supplicant
B. authentication server
C. authenticator
D. RADIUS server
Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3 A. Option DB. Option AC. Option BD. Option C
Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4 The concept of limiting the routes that can be taken between a workstation and a computer resource on a network is called:
A. A security perimeter
B. Path limitation
C. An enforced path
D. A trusted path
Answer: C
Explanation: Individuals are authorized access to resources on a network through specific paths and the enforced path prohibits the user from accessing a resource through a different route than is authorized to that particular user. This prevents the individual from having unauthorized access to sensitive information in areas off limits to that individual. Examples of controls to implement an enforced path include establishing virtual private networks (VPNs) for specific groups within an organization, using firewalls with access control lists, restricting user menu options, and providing specific phone numbers or dedicated lines for remote access. Answer a is a distracter. Answer c, security perimeter, refers to the boundary where security controls are in effect to protect assets. This is a general definition and can apply to physical and technical (logical) access controls. In physical security, a fence may define the security perimeter. In technical access control, a security perimeter can be defined in terms of a Trusted Computing Base (TCB). A TCB is the total combination of protection mechanisms within a computer system. These mechanisms include the firmware, hardware, and software that enforce the system security policy. The security perimeter is the boundary that separates the TCB from the remainder of the system. In answer "A trusted path" a trusted path is a path that exists to permit the user to access the TCB without being compromised by other processes or users.
