NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2012. The domain contains two servers. The servers are configured as shown in the following table. Server1 and Server2 host a load-balanced website named Web1. Web1 runs by using an application pool named WebApp1. WebApp1 uses a group Managed Service Account named gMSA1 as its identity. Domain users connect to Web1 by using either the name Web1.contoso.com or the alias myweb.contoso.com. You discover the following: When the users access Web1 by using Web1.contoso.com, they authenticate by using Kerberos. When the users access Web1 by using myweb.contoso.com, they authenticate by using NTLM. You need to ensure that the users can authenticate by using Kerberos when they connect by using myweb.contoso.com. What should you do? A. Modify the properties of the gMSA1 service account. B. Run the Add-ADComputerServiceAccount cmdlet. C. Run the Install-ADServiceAccount cmdlet. D. Modify the properties of the Web1 website. Answer: C
Explanation: * Install-ADServiceAccount Installs an Active Directory service account on a computer. * The Install-ADServiceAccount cmdlet installs an existing Active Directory service account on the computer on which the cmdlet is run. This cmdlet verifies that the computer is eligible to host the service account. The cmdlet also makes the required changes locally so that the service account password can be periodically reset by the computer without requiring any user action. * Managed service accounts and virtual accounts are two new types of accounts introduced in Windows Server 2008 R2/2012 and Windows 7/8 to enhance the service isolation and manageability of network applications such as Microsoft SQL Server and Internet Information Services (IIS). * If you configure the application to use a domain account, you can isolate the privileges for the application, but you need to manually manage passwords or create a custom solution for managing these passwords. Many SQL Server and IIS applications use this strategy to enhance security, but this strategy requires additional administration and complexity. In these deployments, service administrators spend a considerable amount of time on maintenance tasks such as managing service passwords and service principal names (SPNs), which are required for Kerberos authentication. In addition, these maintenance tasks can disrupt service. Two new types of accounts available in Windows Server 2008 R2 and Windows 7--the managed service account and the virtual account--are designed to provide crucial applications such as SQL Server or IIS with the isolation of their own accounts, while eliminating the need for an administrator to manually administer the SPN and credentials for these accounts.
