NEW QUESTION: 1Which of the following is a set of data processing elements that increases the performance in a computer by overlapping the steps of different instructions?A. reduced-instruction-set-computer (RISC)B. pipeliningC. complex-instruction-set-computer (CISC)D. multitaskingAnswer: B*Explanation:Pipelining is a natural concept in everyday life, e.g. on an assembly line. Consider the assembly of a car: assume that certain steps in the assembly line are to install the engine,install the hood, and install the wheels (in that order, with arbitrary interstitial steps). A car on theassembly line can have only one of the three steps done at once. After the car has its engineinstalled, it moves on to having its hood installed, leaving the engine installation facilities availablefor the next car. The first car then moves on to wheel installation, the second car to hoodinstallation, and a third car begins to have its engine installed. If engine installation takes 20minutes, hood installation takes 5 minutes, and wheel installation takes 10 minutes, then finishingall three cars when only one car can be assembled at once would take 105 minutes. On the otherhand, using the assembly line, the total time to complete all three is 75 minutes. At this point,additional cars will come off the assembly line at 20 minute increments.In computing, a pipeline is a set of data processing elements connected in series, so that theoutput of one element is the input of the next one. The elements of a pipeline are often executed inparallel or in time-sliced fashion; in that case, some amount of buffer storage is often insertedbetween elements. Pipelining is used in processors to allow overlapping execution of multipleinstructions within the same circuitry. The circuitry is usually divided into stages, includinginstruction decoding, arithmetic, and register fetching stages, wherein each stage processes oneinstruction at a time.The following were not correct answers:CISC: is a CPU design where single instructions execute several low-level operations (such as a load from memory, an arithmetic operation, and a memory store) within a single instruction.RISC: is a CPU design based on simplified instructions that can provide higher performance asthe simplicity enables much faster execution of each instruction.Multitasking: is a method where multiple tasks share common processing resources, such as aCPU, through a method of fast scheduling that gives the appearance of parallelism, but in reality only one task is being performed at any one time.
