NEW QUESTION: 1Note: This question is part of a series of questions that use the same or similar answer choices. An answer choice may be correct for more than one question in the series. Each question is independent of the other questions in this series. Information and details provided in a question apply only to that question.You need to deploy a new Microsoft SQL Server environment that meets the following requirements:* The SQL Server instance must be highly available.* There must be minimal downtime incurred during hardware failure or operating system maintenance.* All instance-level security settings and SQL Server Agent jobs must be available without additional synchronization tasks.What should you implement?A. a Windows cluster with a shared-nothing architectureB. a file share witnessC. an Always On Availability Group with all replicas in synchronous-commit modeD. a Microsoft SQL Server failover cluster instance (FCI)E. log shippingF. a Microsoft Azure Stretch DatabaseG. an Always On Availability Group with secondary replicas in asynchronous-commit modeAnswer: D
Explanation:ExplanationAs part of the SQL Server Always On offering, Always On Failover Cluster Instances leverages Windows Server Failover Clustering (WSFC) functionality to provide local high availability through redundancy at the server-instance level-a failover cluster instance (FCI). An FCI is a single instance of SQL Server that is installed across Windows Server Failover Clustering (WSFC) nodes and, possibly, across multiple subnets.When there is hardware or software failure of a server, the applications or clients connecting to the server will experience downtime. When a SQL Server instance is configured to be an FCI (instead of a standalone instance), the high availability of that SQL Server instance is protected by the presence of redundant nodes in the FCI.References:

NEW QUESTION: 2A hacker is attempting to see which IP addresses are currently active on a network. Which NMAP switch would the hacker use?A. -sUB. -sSC. -sOD. -sPAnswer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3When compared to a medium severity medium frequency risk, the operational risk capital requirement for a high severity very low frequency risk is likely to be:A. Unaffected by differences in frequency or severityB. LowerC. ZeroD. HigherAnswer: C
Explanation:ExplanationHigh frequency and low severity risks, for example the risks of fraud losses for a credit card issuer, may have high expected losses, but low unexpected losses. In other words, we can generally expect these losses to stay within a small expected and known range. The capital requirement will be the worst case losses at a given confidence level less expected losses, and in such cases this can be expected to be low. On the other hand, medium severity medium frequency risks, such as the risks of unexpected legal claims, 'fat-finger' trading errors, will have low expected losses but a high level of unexpected losses. Thus the capital requirement for such risks will be high. It is also worthwhile mentioning high severity and low frequency risks - for example a rogue trader circumventing all controls and bringing the bank down, or a terrorist strike or natural disaster creating other losses - will probably have zero expected losses & high unexpected losses but only at very high levels of confidence. In other words, operational risk capital is unlikely to provide for such events and these would lie in the part of the tail that is not covered by most levels of confidence when calculating operational risk capital. Note that risk capital is required for only unexpected losses as expected losses are to be borne by P&L reserves. Therefore the operational risk capital requirements for a low severity high frequency risk is likely to be low when compared to other risks that are lower frequency but higher severity. Thus Choice 'c' is the correct answer.
