NEW QUESTION: 3A system administrator is doing network reconnaissance of a company's external network to determine the vulnerability of various services that are running. Sending some sample traffic to the external host, the administrator obtains the following packet capture:Based on the output, which of the following services should be further tested for vulnerabilities?A. HTTPSB. HTTPC. SMBD. SSHAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 4A customer needs to do a cross database join between two tables where, one of the tables has a small number of values and the other has a large number of values. How can you optimize the way the BI Server processes the query?A. By specifying a many to one join between the tables with the small and large numbers of valuesB. By specifying a driving tableC. By creating your joins by using the Business Model DiagramD. By creating your logical join by using the Joins ManagerE. By specifying a one-to-many join between the tables with the small and large numbers of valuesAnswer: B*Explanation:ExplanationYou can specify a Driving table parameter in a complex join.Driving tables are for use in optimizing the manner in which the Oracle BI Server processes cross-database joins when one table is very small and the other table is very large. The BI Server will query the driving table (the small one) and will get a list of values. The BI Server will then generate a second SQL using a parameterized IN list with the values from the first query. Specifying driving tables leads to query optimization only when the number of rows being selected from the driving table is much smaller than the number of rows in the table to which it is being joined.
