NEW QUESTION: 1 Here my friend, about whose madness I now saw, or fancied that I saw, certain indications of method,removed the peg which marked the spot where the beetle fell, to a spot about three inches to the westwardof its former position. Taking, now, the tape measure from the nearest point of the trunk to the peg, asbefore, and continuing the extension in a straight line to the distance of fifty feet, a spot was indicated,removed, by several yards, from the point at which we had been digging.Around the new position a circle, somewhat larger than in the former instance, was now described, and weagain set to work with the spades. I was dreadfully weary, but, scarcely understanding what hadoccasioned the change in my thoughts, I felt no longer any great aversion from the labor imposed. I hadbecome most unaccountably interested - nay, even excited. Perhaps there was something, amid all theextravagant demeanor of Legrand - some air of forethought, or of deliberation, which impressed me. Idug eagerly, and now and then caught myself actually looking, with something that very much resembledexpectation, for the fancied treasure, the vision of which had demented my unfortunate companion. At aperiod when such vagaries of thought most fully possessed me, and when we had been at work perhapsan hour and a half, we were again interrupted by the violent howlings of the dog. His uneasiness, in thefirst instance, had been, evidently, but the result of playfulness or caprice, but he now assumed a bitter andserious tone. Upon Jupiter's again attempting to muzzle him, he made furious resistance, and, leaping intothe hole, tore up the mould frantically with his claws. In a few seconds he had uncovered a mass of human bones, forming two complete skeletons, intermingled with several buttons of metal, and what appeared tobe the dust of decayed woolen. One or two strokes of a spade upturned the blade of a large Spanish knife,and, as we dug farther, three or four loose pieces of gold and silver coin came to light.At sight of these the joy of Jupiter could scarcely be restrained, but the countenance of his master wore anair of extreme disappointment he urged us, however, to continue our exertions, and the words were hardlyuttered when I stumbled and fell forward, having caught the toe of my boot in a large ring of iron that layhalf buried in the loose earth.We now worked in earnest, and never did I pass ten minutes of more intense excitement. During his interval we had fairly unearthed an oblong chest of wood, which, from its perfect preservation andwonderful hardness, had plainly been subjected to some mineralizing process-perhaps that of the Bi-chloride of Mercury. This box was three feet and a half long, three feet broad, and two and a half feet deep.It was firmly secured by bands of wrought iron, riveted, and forming a kind of open trelliswork over thewhole. On each side of the chest, near the top, were three rings of iron-six in all-by means of which afirm hold could be obtained by six persons. Our utmost united endeavors served only to disturb the coffervery slightly in its bed. We at once saw the impossibility of removing so great a weight. Luckily, the solefastenings of the lid consisted of two sliding bolts. These we drew back trembling and panting with anxiety.In an instant, a treasure of incalculable value lay gleaming before us. As the rays of the lanterns fell withinthe pit, there flashed upwards a glow and a glare, from a confused heap of gold and of jewels, that absolutely dazzled our eyes.I shall not pretend to describe the feelings with which I gazed. Amazement was, of course, predominant.Legrand appeared exhausted with excitement, and spoke very few words. Jupiter's countenance wore, forsome minutes, as deadly a pallor as it is possible, in nature of things, for any negro's visage to assume. Heseemed stupefied thunder stricken. Presently he fell upon his knees in the pit, and, burying his naked armsup to the elbows in gold, let them there remain, as if enjoying the luxury of a bath.It became necessary, at last, that I should arouse both master and valet to the expediency of removing thetreasure. It was growing late, and it behooved us to make exertion, that we might get every thing housed before daylight. It was difficult to say what should be done, and much time was spent in deliberation-soconfused were the ideas of all. We, finally, lightened the box by removing two thirds of its contents, whenwe were enabled, with some trouble, to raise it from the hole. The articles taken out were deposited amongthe brambles, and the dog left to guard them, with strict orders from Jupiter neither, upon any pretence, tostir from the spot, nor to open his mouth until our return.In context, the word "mould" 2nd paragraph is best described asA. box. B. cast.C. wooden container.D. carved woodwork.E. broken soil.Answer: EExplanation: Explanation/Reference:Explanation:The context clues to help determine meaning follows the sentence of use, which is common. If the dogcould tear it up with his claws and in so doing uncover human bones, it is most likely broken soil given theprovided selections.
