NEW QUESTION: 1 A storage administrator is auditing an environment and finds that an unknown person accessed the company silo and removed a number of tapes. These tapes had sensitive company IP and PII on them, now putting the company in a legally precarious situation. Which of the following could the administrator do to ensure that lost data is not usable by an unauthorized person in the future?A. Network encryptionB. Password encryptionC. Disk encryptionD. Tape encryptionAnswer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2 According to EMC best practices, when deploying an xCP application, which artifacts should be imported into a separate DAR file and deployed to the target environment before the rest of the application?A. business object framework (BOF) objectsB. workflows referenced by the TaskSpace applicationC. structured data types used to create reportsD. forms referenced by the TaskSpace applicationAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3 Which of the following is considered indirect compensation?A. base payB. performance bonusC. variable compensationD. leave of absenceAnswer: D
Explanation: A leave of absence is considered indirect compensation. Compensation is indirect when it cannot easily be assigned a monetary value. Since an employee is not paid during a leave of absence, granting one is not a direct expense for the company. Of course, the employee's absence may result in diminished productivity and therefore less revenue for the company, but it is difficult to quantify this loss.
