NEW QUESTION: 3Which two circumstances can cause collision domain issues on VLAN domain? (Choose two.)A. congestion on the switch inband pathB. an overloaded shared segmentC. duplex mismatches on Ethernet segments in the same VLAND. a failing NIC in an end deviceE. multiple errors on switchport interfacesAnswer: B,CExplanation:Collision DomainsA collision domain is an area of a single LAN where end stations contend for access to the network because all end stations are connected to a shared physical medium. If two connected devices transmit onto the media at the same time, a collision occurs. When a collision occurs, a JAM signal is sent on the network, indicating that a collision has occurred and that devices should ignore any fragmented data associated with the collision.Both sending devices back off sending their data for a random amount and then try again if the medium is free for transmission. Therefore, collisions effectively delay transmission of data, lowering the effective throughput available to a device. The more devices that are attached to a collision domain, the greater the chances of collisions; this results in lower bandwidth and performance for each device attached to the collision domain. Bridges and switches terminate the physical signal path of a collision domain, allowing you to segment separate collision domains, breaking them up into multiple smaller pieces to provide more bandwidth per user within the new collision domains formed.
