NEW QUESTION: 3 You have been doing your mobile application performance testing on a simulator. Why would you need to do some testing on a real device?
A. Because a simulator is not an exact replica of the real device and may give different performance results.
B. Because simulators cannot be cloned to provide enough devices to generate a realistic load
C. Because it is not possible to thoroughly test a simulator to ensure it is working correctly.
D. Because simulators cannot run concurrent applications
Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation A is correct. A simulator is not a real device and doesn't have the hardware and connectivity characteristics that the real device has. B is not correct because you can thoroughly test a simulator, but that still won't get around the problem in A. C is not correct because this is precisely why simulators are used - they are easily cloned. D is not correct because simulators can certainly run concurrent applications
