Explanation: Under a consignment arrangement the consignor ships merchandise to the consignee who acts as agent for the consignor in selling the goods. The goods are in the physical possession of the consignee but remain the property of the consignor and are included in the consignor's inventory. Revenue and the related cost of goods sold from these consigned goods should only be recognized by the consignor when the merchandise is sold and delivered to the final customer. Accordingly, recognition occurs when notification is received that the consignee has sold the goods. Only then are the recognition criteria for a sale of goods satisfied: The enterprise has transferred the significant risks and rewards of ownership, the enterprise has neither continuing managerial involvement to an extent associated with ownership nor effective control over the goods, the amount can be reliably measured, it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the enterprise, and transactional costs can be reliably measured. In this consignment arrangement. 30 barrels have been paid for, so the revenue is recognized for these barrels. The five barrels returned are not included in unearned revenue because they constitute a return of consigned goods. Accordingly, the amount of inappropriately recognized revenue is US $11,000 [(40 consigned + 50 consigned - 30 paid for - 5 returns) x $200].
