NEW QUESTION: 2 Examine the following table: In the table, you deleted the record of Mark Smith. Which of the following will change as a result? A. Attribute of the table B. Domain of the table C. Cardinality of the table D. Degree of the table Answer: C Explanation: In tables, the number of rows (or tuples) is called the cardinality. When a record (or row) of the table is deleted (or added), the cardinality of the table changes. Answer A and D When a column of the table is changed, the degree (or attribute) is changed. The degree of a table refers to the number of columns that a table has. The number of columns contained in a table is referred to by the term degree of the table; if the degree of a table is increased by 1, it means that a new column is added to the table. The degree of the table denotes the number of columns or attributes. Answer C is incorrect. A Domain is a set of allowable values for one or more attributes. It is also known as the data domain which refers to all the unique values which a data element may contain. The Domain boundary can be defined by rules such as the data type with an enumerated list of values. Check constraint is also a simple example of defining the boundary of a domain.
