<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/dd379483%28WS.10%29.aspx>

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/dd379535%28WS.10%29.aspx>

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc737716%28WS.10%29.aspx> DHCP Administrators

Members of the DHCP Administrators group can view and modify any data at the DHCP server. DHCP Administrators can create and delete scopes, add reservations, change option values, create superscopes, or perform any other activity needed to administer the DHCP server, including export or import of the DHCP server configuration and database. DHCP Administrators perform these tasks using the Netsh commands for DHCP or the DHCP console. For more information, see DHCP tools. Members of the DHCP Administrators group do not have unlimited administrative rights. For example, if a DHCP server is also configured as a DNS server, a member of the DHCP Administrators group can view and modify the DHCP configuration but cannot modify DNS server configuration on the same computer. Because members of the DHCP Administrators group have rights on the local computer only, DHCP Administrators cannot authorize or unauthorize DHCP servers in Active Directory. Only members of the Domain Admins group can perform this task. If you want to authorize or unauthorize a DHCP server in a child domain, you must have enterprise administrator credentials for the parent domain. For more information about authorizing DHCP servers in Active Directory, see Authorizing DHCP servers and Authorize a DHCP server in Active Directory. Using groups to administer DHCP servers in a domain When you add a user or group to a DHCP Users or DHCP Administrators group on a DHCP server, the rights of the DHCP group member do not apply to all of the DHCP servers in the domain. The rights apply only to the DHCP service on the local computer.
